Treasurer Elliott Visits Clarksville to Highlight Community Investments Through Indiana Bond Bank Program

CLARKSVILLE, Ind. – Yesterday, Treasurer Daniel Elliott, alongside representatives from the Indiana Bond Bank (IBB), visited project sites in the Town of Clarksville that recently received funding through IBB's Community Funding Resource Program. The visit comes ahead of an official groundbreaking ceremony planned for May.

Through the program, the Indiana Bond Bank provided $670,000 in funding to support two community projects that will expand educational and cultural opportunities for residents and visitors.

One of the funded initiatives is the Falls of the Ohio Education Pavilion Project, which will create an outdoor learning pavilion as part of a larger effort to expand education spaces at the Falls of the Ohio State Park. The pavilion will serve as a gathering space for environmental education programs, school field trips, and community events connected to the region's unique natural history.

The second project, the Central Green Project, will feature construction of a multi-purpose stage designed to host live music performances and community gatherings, creating a vibrant public space for residents and visitors in Clarksville.

"Investing in local communities is one of the most important things we can do for the future of Indiana," said Treasurer Elliott. "Projects like these in Clarksville help create places where families can gather, students can learn about our state's natural heritage, and communities can grow stronger together."

"The Community Funding Resource Program is designed to help communities access flexible, affordable financing for projects that make a real difference locally," said Jacob Blasdel, Executive Director of the Indiana Bond Bank. "We were pleased to work with Clarksville to find a financing solution that will support these new educational and community spaces."

Representatives from the Indiana Bond Bank and the Treasurer of State's Office toured the project sites with local leaders ahead of the official groundbreaking ceremony expected in May.

The Community Funding Resource Program helps Indiana communities access affordable financing for projects that improve quality of life and strengthen local infrastructure.
